Part 6 - Remarks

My training and mindset can be a valuable resource for TREA. I think and respond in an analytical manner. I attempt to gather as much data as possible before forming an answer or even a rough opinion. I try to see things from all angles and weigh the information before coming to an assessment. As someone who has been directly involved with TREA for many years, I do not come to the table with any pre-conceived notions that what has always been is always the right thing. I can bring a fresher, younger perspective. I can relate to things in a technical manner if the need arises. The need to reach out to the post 9/11 military person is critical. The way they interact with each other, their military organizations and each other is strikingly different from 50 years ago, heck even 15 years ago. The way that technology is used is something that should be at the forefront of TREA's way of thinking.

I would be honored to have the opportunity to keep TREA relevant for the next coming years. Thank you.
